

Ademola Henry Adigun is a developmental consultant for over 16 years. He is currently the Team Leader of the Facility for Oil Sector Transformation Project (FOSTER). He is responsible for managing the strategy for delivery of the project alongside a team of capable persons.

He was responsible for the management of the Accountability Workstream of FOSTER. He leads on interventions focusing on NNPC, the Min of Petroleum, the Presidency, Ministry of Finance and the National Assembly.

He is also a key driver of the Petroleum Industry Bill. He was the country lead in developing the Energy National Determined Contribution on Climate Change for the CoP 24. Prior to joining FOSTER, he worked for Adam Smith International on the ENABLE project managing the Government component and the Information component.

He has considerable private sector experience working with banks and a top 3 Nigerian strategy firm: Restral Limited. He was a project manager in British Council supporting delivery of the DFID funded GBP14M education reform project. He has also worked with the Department for International Development as a program manager.

He has facilitated capacity building exercises in several countries on oil sector reforms.